MEMORIAL OF ST. MONICA - AUGUST 27

Saint Monica, one of a relatively small number of African saints, is typically described as Saint Augustine's long-suffering mother, who prayed, cajoled, and urged him to abandon his wayward life and embrace Christianity, which he eventually did. Her own intellectual and leadership abilities are unrecorded except as they influenced her family members, but her story of persistence and strength continues to inspire. Many in the church uphold her as a model of enduring faith. If you feel like quitting when faced by a difficult problem or problematic family member, pray to Saint Monica for wisdom and perseverance.

MEMORIAL OF ST. AUGUSTINE, BISHOP & DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH - AUGUST 28

In his theological work "The City of God", Saint Augustine proposed that slavery, an accepted practice of his day, was sinful and did more harm to the slaveholder than the enslaved person. Although Augustine's sentiment may have seemed enlightened for its time, slavery, particularly among poor people and people of color, continues to this day in various forms around the world. We can see the evil that racism perpetuates. All of humanity is straining under the weight of this sin. It is time for each of us to "open wide our hearts," as the U.S. bishops advised in their 2018 pastoral letter on racism. We do well to have a first (or fresh) look at it today.

A Note From Fr. Larry

SPECIAL COLLECTION ON AUGUST 22 - 23 FOR BEIRUT, LEBANON

The people of Beirut, Lebanon, and especially the Catholics in Beirut, continue to suffer greatly as a result of the massive explosion there in early August. Brooklyn has historically been one of the centers of the Lebanese community in the United States. The Eparchy (or Diocese for the Eastern Seaboard from Maine to Florida) of the Maronite (Lebanese Catholic) Church is headquartered in Brooklyn. Bishop DiMarzio has asked each parish in the Brooklyn Diocese to quickly take up a special collection to help the Catholics in Beirut who were already struggling, even before the explosion. Because we are not currently taking up collections in the usual manner, we will donate the money that comes in to Holy Name of Jesus Parish for this weekend's (August 22/23) Second Collection to our Brooklyn Diocese to send to the Catholic Church in Beirut. (These are the envelopes and Faith Direct donations normally intended for Parish Building Repairs.)

If you do not use church envelopes or Faith Direct, but wish to make a donation for Beirut, please make a note on your check or place cash in a plain envelope marked "For Beirut Catholics".

As always, thank you and God bless you for your generosity.

Scripture Insights

Please consider the following commentary on this Sunday's readings (Isaiah 22:19-23; Romans 11:33-36; Gospel: Matthew 16:13-20):

"ROCK OF AGES"

'What's happened to the church? The last council seems to be the work of the devil.' The words still stay with me, although I heard them from an older priest many years ago.

He died not long after, and I often wonder what he would think if he were still alive. The apparently serene and steady church he once knew, that ark of sure safety, has been sailing troubled waters, to say the least.

Elders question whether our young know enough dogma or tradition to pass anything on to their future children. Nagging doubts stimulate questions: does the language of holiness and transcendence, of sin and forgiveness, of objective right and wrong, of the sacred and eternal even make sense to most Catholics?

Divisions are so stark and sharp. One invites complete perplexity by daring to read conservative and liberal Catholic publications in the same sitting. The demons of the one pose as angels for the other. Actions judged sinful by some Catholics are called virtuous by others. The papacy of Pope John Paul II inspired pride, hope, and trust for some, bitter disappointment—even anger—in others. Vocations to the priesthood and to the once-thriving religious congregations dwindle, despite the stronger showing among communities that are more conservative or 'orthodox.'

If we even halfway agree with this account, what might we think of Christ's words to Peter? "You are Rock, and on this rock I will build my church, and the jaws of death shall not prevail against it." This text, understood both in terms of papal primacy and the church's durability, surely challenges the faith of the contemporary Catholic.

But when has it not been so? What kind of 'rock' was Peter when only moments after his great profession, 'You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God,' Jesus would say, 'Get behind me, Satan! You are an obstacle to me'? (Mt 16:23). That was only the beginning of Peter's reign which has, of course, included braggadocio, denials, betrayals, reconciliations, victories, later struggles with Paul, and disappointments with his people.

As for Peter's ark, that church, our church, how often it neared disaster: in the shadow of imperial armies, under threats of martyrdom and flame, in the depths of dark ages, infidelities of monks, scandals of popes, in the great wounds of schism, the slaughter of religious wars, the unraveling of the priesthood, the selling of bishoprics, the seductions of fascism, Communism, and capitalism.

Yet doom was not our destiny. Through all of history's storms, despite infidelities, diminishments, and failure, the church has carried in its womb, to be born over and over again in scripture and the Eucharist, the Christ who asks of us, whether pope or peasant, 'Who do you say I am?' From Borgia palaces to the huts of Connemara, in the convents of Lisieux and in the slave ships of Cartagena's harsh harbors, on Korea's crosses or Colorado's mountain hermitages, the answer was given which made Peter a rock and the church an ark: 'You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God.'

St. Paul plumbed the mystery. 'How deep are the riches and the wisdom and the knowledge of God. How inscrutable his judgments, how unsearchable his ways.' (Second Reading)"

THE KEYS TO THE KINGDOM

In this Sunday's Gospel, Peter proclaims that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the Living God. Jesus then tells him: "you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church. ...I will give you the keys to the kingdom of heaven." The name Peter in Greek means "rock", helping to make this statement easier to understand. Most of us have seen images of St. Peter on TV, in the movies, or even in cartoons. He's usually guarding the Gates of Heaven and has keys on his belt or on a desk before him. These depictions are based on Jesus' declarations in the Gospel.

There is another meaning to these statements. In Psalm 62, we hear "My help comes from God, He alone is my rock." Jesus is fortifying Peter to be as solid as a rock in supporting and teaching the new Church. He is also letting him know that God will always be with him.

But what about the Keys to the Kingdom? In the Old Testament, the key was a symbol of authoritative power. Israel's Kings used ministers to govern their people. The King would put one minister in charge, give him the title "Prime Minister", and grant him the Keys to the Kingdom. Jesus, as the King of Israel through the lineage of King David, gave Peter this authoritative power. Peter, in turn, passed this teaching authority down through the popes and, centuries later, it rests with our current one: Francis.

Pope Francis uses his power judiciously. While he has shared his teachings and delegated some of his powers to the Bishops, the final authority still rests with him by virtue of the Keys to the Kingdom that Jesus bestowed on Peter. Please keep Pope Francis in your prayers. ~DEACON GERRY DEVINE

Reminders of the Keys to the Kingdom appear throughout Rome and the Vatican. This symbol of papal authority is found in numerous places, including the Vatican flag and the Coats of Arms of individual popes, Vatican City, and the Holy See.

The Holy Name Food Pantry will distribute food from the Rectory basement on Saturdays, Sept 5, & Sept 19 from 2 - 3 p.m. At this time, tuna and cereal are needed. We wish to thank Elias Ralston and family for their very generous donation, as well as all of you who have helped us during these last few months.
